

Music

The University of Missouri School of Music (<https://music.missouri.edu/>) prepares students to make meaningful contributions in the world as performers, composers, teachers, and scholars. Founded in 1907, the School of Music is one of the larger academic units in the College of Arts and Science. The primary facilities (<https://music.missouri.edu/facilities/>) are found in the Sinquefeld Music Center and the Fine Arts Building, which include practice rooms, rehearsal spaces, classrooms, staff and faculty offices, an ensemble library, a music technology lab, a recording studio, and a concert hall.

Over 250 music majors and numerous music minors enjoy extensive interaction with the School of Music's distinguished faculty. Hundreds of non-music majors also participate in School of Music activities—everything from courses such as “Jazz, Pop, and Rock” to Marching Mizzou. Both music majors and non-music majors can join large and smaller ensembles (<https://music.missouri.edu/ensembles/>) through a successful audition. Ensembles without an audition requirement include University Band, University Chorale Union, and Sankofa Chorale.
