

MEd in Educational, School, and Counseling Psychology with Emphasis in Sport Psychology

No longer admitting to this program.

Students who choose this specialty area have an interest in working with the careers of individuals in the world of sports (sport coaches, strength and conditioning coaches, athletic trainers, athletic academic counselors, Life Skills coordinators, athletic administrators, career coaches, life coaches, and the like). The curriculum is based on a scientist-practitioner model of training as well as a holistic view of how sport, career choice, and personal adjustment provide one with both an engaging and rewarding career and personal life. There is a strong emphasis on learning thru experience, where the experiences derived in and with athletic teams and with a college career center.

Degree Requirements

This degree program provides a strong, fortified (51 credit hours) Masters Degree that blends the two fields of Sport Psychology and Career Counseling.

The Counseling Sport Psychology program was designed to move one toward qualifying a student to meet most but not all of the State of Missouri's curricular requirements for Licensure as a Professional Counselor (LPC). In addition to required course work, the graduate must also complete 3000 hours of supervised counseling and pass a licensure examination. The Counseling Sport Psychology program was also designed to qualify a student to meet some of the Association for the Advancement of Applied Sport Psychology's (AAASP) curricular requirements to become a Certified AAASP Consultant. Additional courses/experiences necessary for AAASP Certification are included in a separate Sport Psychology electives section.
