SOC_WK 4345: Case Management for Children and Youth: School and Community-Based Applications

(cross-leveled with SOC_WK 7345). The purpose of this class is to provide knowledge and practice skills needed to engage in therapeutic case management using the evidence-based model known as the Family Check-Up (FCU) to support youth with challenging behaviors. The FCU is a strengths-based intervention that reduces youth problem behaviors by targeting changes in parenting and family management practices as well as supports at school. The FCU utilizes motivational interviewing skills throughout an evidence-based assessment process that examines youth and family functioning in a variety of domains (communication, discipline, school engagement, trauma, etc.). FCU assessment results are then provided to youth and families in a feedback session that results in observable and measurable goals towards progress. Once areas of concern and goals are developed, families are connected to services and FCU case managers follow up with families to address barriers to service acquisition. Students in this class will be exposed to the FCU model, will learn and practice skills to engage in MI-infused assessment, to draft treatment goals that meet youth and family needs, and observe and practice the skills needed to address formidable and challenging behaviors that encourage engagement and participation from clients in the change process. Students will have an opportunity to observe the electronic assessment and feedback system, be exposed to examples of real youth and family cases who have accessed the FCU at FACE and will have opportunities to practice the skills to successfully implement the FCU with families at home and in school settings. (EPAS competencies addressed in content: 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8). Graded on A-F basis only.

Credit Hours: 3

Credit Hours: 3

Prerequisites: departmental consent required

SOC_WK 9450: Qualitative Research for Social Sciences

This course is designed to help prepare doctoral students to do qualitative research. The course focuses on five approaches to qualitative inquiry including research design, data collection, data analysis, interpretation of findings, academic writing, and data visualization. Students will learn how to systematically advance the social work knowledge base using rigorous qualitative methods. Course topics include the theory and practice of qualitative inquiry, how to formulate appropriate research questions for qualitative inquiry, designing qualitative research projects, collecting data used in qualitative inquiry, sampling strategies, approaches to qualitative analysis and when to use them, interpreting and presenting qualitative findings, and how to formulate research and practice implications from qualitative findings. We will also discuss the challenges and benefits of qualitative inquiry in real world settings, options to address challenges, and ways of determining the best approaches given various research projects. Students will have the opportunity to analyze their own data or data provided by the instructor during the analysis portion of the course. This course combines lecture, discussion, in-class activities, and between class professional writing assignments to further student knowledge. Students will have the opportunity each class period to discuss their own qualitative research interests and the class will be customized depending on the needs of the group. Graded on A-F basis only.

Credit Hours: 3

Prerequisites: Doctoral-level standing

Recommended: Doctoral-level Research Methods

SOC_WK 9500: Pro Seminar I

Joint student-faculty exercise in intellectual discovery focusing on current and emerging issues in the field of social work and social development; emphasis on integration of multi-disciplinary perspectives. Graded on S/U basis only.

Credit Hour: 1

Prerequisites: departmental consent required

SOC_WK 9550: Application of Measurement and Scale Development for the Social Sciences

This course will provide students with an introduction to the measurement development process. The course will explore concepts such as defining constructs, identifying facets of a construct, seeking guidance from experts, collecting pilot data, conducting exploratory factor analyses, and refining the initial measure. The course will consist of lecture, outside reading and work, small group workshops, and instructor consultation. At the end of the course, students will have a basic understanding of the measurement development process and how to obtain data for abstract concepts. Graded on A-F basis only.

Credit Hours: 3

SOC_WK 9600: Professional Seminar II

This second seminar focuses on topics related to long term professional success for doctoral students. The seminar covers topics on conference presentations, peer-reviewed publications, external funding, and academic job search process. Graded on S/U basis only.

Credit Hour: 1

SOC_WK 9650: Pedagogical Methods in Social Work and Applied Professional Programs

An in depth examination of the pedagogical issues, policies, and principles associated with teaching social work in higher education. Particular focus will be directed toward online education and its role in the 21st century. Graded on S/U basis only.

Credit Hour: 1

SOC_WK 9800: Research Application I

Individualized seminar with the purpose of orienting a second year school of social work doctoral student towards the completion of the second element of the qualifying exam process. Graded on S/U basis only.

Credit Hour: 1-3

Prerequisites: departmental consent required

SOC_WK 9850: Research Application II

Research Practicum. In most cases it will be a second research practicum but may also be a continuation of the research conducted in SOC_WK 9800. Prerequisites: departmental consent required

Credit Hour: 1-3

SOC_WK 9890: Dissertation Seminar

This course will assist doctoral students in planning and writing the dissertation.

Credit Hours: 3

Prerequisites: departmental consent required

SOC_WK 9900: Doctoral Dissertation Research in Social Work

Independently conducted research that includes concept development, data collection, statistical analysis and social policy implications prepared in a format suitable for publication. Graded on S/U basis only.

Credit Hour: 1-99

Prerequisites: departmental consent required
