

Minor in Journalism

Requirements

The Journalism minor consists of 15 credit hours of journalism coursework. It is intended for students from other MU academic divisions who wish to broaden their understanding of the news media's role in society.

Courses

Students are required to take either JOURN 1000 Journalism for Non-Majors or JOURN 1100 Principles of Journalism in Democracy.

Students who decide to pursue the minor after completing JOURN 1100 Principles of Journalism in Democracy are ineligible to take JOURN 1000 Journalism for Non-Majors.

In addition to JOURN 1000 or JOURN 1100, the following courses can be selected by students who wish to complete a Journalism minor.

JOURN 1050 Public Relations and Image Management for Non-Majors (3)

JOURN 1050 Public Relations and Image Management for Non-Majors (3)

JOURN 1300 Fundamentals of Written Journalism and Strategic Communication (3)

JOURN 1400 Applied Projects for Journalism and Strategic Communication (3)

JOURN 2000 Cross-Cultural Journalism (3)

JOURN 2301 Topics in Journalism and Strategic Communication (3)

JOURN 2200 Audiences and Persuasion (2)

JOURN 3000 History of American Journalism (3)

JOURN 4000 Communications Law (3)

JOURN 4146 Strategic Communication Techniques (1)

JOURN 4160 Social Media Foundations and Practice (1)

JOURN 4242W Strategic Communication Leadership - Writing Intensive (3)

JOURN 4244W Creating Cultures Through Effective Strategic Communication and Leadership - Writing Intensive (3)

JOURN 4246W Taking People With You: Entrepreneurial Leadership and Innovation - Writing Intensive (3)

Admissions

Students may apply for the Journalism minor at any time, so long as they have a minimum UM system cumulative GPA of 2.8 or higher.

Transfer students may use up to three credit hours of approved Journalism transfer credit toward a Journalism minor.

Students pursuing a Journalism major are ineligible for the Journalism minor.

Registration

Students are permitted to self-enroll in JOURN 1100 Principles of Journalism in Democracy or JOURN 1000 Journalism for Non-Majors. Other courses are offered on a space-available basis and after the early registration period has ended, if the student meets the prerequisites to enroll in the course. Students are required to submit a course preference list to the Journalism Minor Coordinator. If space is available, a permission number to enroll will be provided.

Students that would like to enroll in skills based courses are encouraged to enroll in JOURN 1100 Principles of Journalism in Democracy.

Academic Status

Students are subject to academic standing review as determined by the student's major division. Students must earn a minimum grade of C- in Journalism courses. Journalism courses may be repeated one time.

Upon repeating a course, if a student fails to earn a C- or better, the student is no longer eligible for the Journalism Minor.

Journalism students that leave the major may declare the minor in Journalism if they have completed lower-level journalism courses with a C- or better. Students must maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.8 to be eligible to take additional journalism courses.

The journalism minor is awarded after the student completes the required number of journalism credit hours.

Advising

Journalism minors are not assigned a faculty advisor or academic advisor within the School of Journalism. Contact the Office of Student Services in the School of Journalism for more information.