

Graduate Certificate in Organizational Change and Conflict Management

The Graduate Certificate in Organizational Change and Conflict Management is a collaboration between the Truman School of Government and Public Affairs within the College of Arts and Science and the Law School. The certificate will focus on organizational analysis and change, dispute resolution and conflict management.

Requirements

Students must complete 12 credit hours to receive the certificate. Students must select three courses from the required courses list and one elective in consultation with the certificate coordinator.

Students do not need to be enrolled in a graduate degree program at MU to participate in the program. The graduate certificate in organizational change and conflict management can be completed 100% online.
