

MLIS in Library and Information Science

The Library and Information Science (LIS) Program contributes to the essential knowledge, skills, and values of librarianship and the information professions through research, education, and outreach. Our program has been accredited (<https://www.ala.org/cfapps/lisdir/>) by the American Library Association (ALA) (<https://www.ala.org/>) since 1966/67, and the program was given continued accreditation in 2022.

The MLIS is an online degree. We use several different course structures to provide you with the broadest and most instructionally-appropriate class opportunities.

- Online asynchronous classes allow you to participate anytime, anywhere.
- Online synchronous classes, scheduled at fixed times to allow online, offer real-time interaction without the drive time.

Most library and information science faculty are based in Columbia. A faculty member in Kansas City and a program liaison in Omaha, NE provide student support and coordinate extracurricular activities. Students can seek the MLIS with emphasis areas of Archival Science, Health & Medical Librarianship, Learning Design & Development, Youth Services or PK-12 School Library Media Specialist, as well as Library Media Specialist with Certification. There are two dual degree options: a dual MLIS-Master of Public Affairs, offered in conjunction with the Truman School of Government and Public Affairs (<https://truman.missouri.edu/>), and a dual MLIS-JD, offered in conjunction with the School of Law (<https://law.missouri.edu/academics/dual-degrees/library-information-science-jd-mlis/>).

Graduate Examination Process

In your final semester, you will develop and present a portfolio of your work to demonstrate your mastery of the LIS Student Learning Outcomes (<https://education.missouri.edu/information-science-learning-technologies/degrees-programs/library-information-science/#outcomes>). The portfolio contains descriptions of competencies and what they mean to you, explanations of artifacts, and reflections. You should start on your portfolio early in your coursework.

Applicants are required to meet two sets of minimum qualifications for admission: the minimum requirements of the Master of Library & Information Science program and the minimum requirements of the Graduate School (<https://gradschool.missouri.edu/admissions/eligibility-process/>). Because requirements vary, you must refer to a degree program's graduate admission page to learn about specific admission criteria, application deadlines, eligibility and application process. Your application materials will be reviewed by both the Graduate School and the degree program to which you've applied before official admission to the University of Missouri.
